Act 4a

The Pieces of the Puzzle

Your familiarity with the arcane has you convinced: this blameless creature will be sufficient. Amply so. It is a tool of evil, no doubt, yet any tool can be repurposed with enough determination.

The undertaker is evidently satisfied of your involvement, yet he still looks at you with vile expectation. "Well? Make the offering," he demands. "And be quick about it. My own work is not yet complete."

Objective – If you are at the Mausoleum and you control both the Charred Phalange asset and the Malformed Beast asset, advance.

The necessary items for your barrier spell are gathered and ready. All that's left to do now is to reach the latr itself... from the correct angle, of course.

Discard each enemy at Your House, Riverside, Miskatonic University, and the Graveyard. Remove Professor Warren, Mister Collins, Your House,
Riverside, Miskatonic University, and the Graveyard
from the game.

Reveal the Mausoleum.

Put into play the set-aside Cellar, Attic, Hallway, and Parlor. Put the Study Door asset into play attached to the Hallway.

Act 5a

Of Liminality

Following the undertaker's instruction, you enter the inner crypts. According to him, the connections have been found, the gaps have been fortified. A path to the lair. To the house.

Your own interest in this residential building is, after all, a dark mirror of the cult's own.

Objective – If a Barrier asset is attached to the Parlor and no Monster enemies are in the Parlor, advance.

Of Laurels and Rest

ACT. 5B

The ghouls have all been repelled back into their shadowy realm, a fierce, bright barrier now placed between them and the town of Arkham. This final lair's inhabitants will not be able to spew forth as planned; rituals which are set to take place in the woods mere hours from now.

You finally allow yourself to breathe a sigh of relief. You sit down crosslegged in the centre of the room, acutely focusing your mental energies at the delicate balance of your fiery antipodal, waiting for dawn. You did it. Your doom shall not come for you this night.

You have successfully managed to trap the ghouls inside their lair. The malevolent forces threatening Arkham will surely be greatly weakened. (-R1)
